

BLOSSOMING OF THE BOSSUS

Ahh, Spring! Yes the skies are bright, the land is green and the air is fresh! A time of rebirth. A time of renewal. After a long cold winter in hibernation, once again we observe the annual flowering of the "Bossus Ninety-ninus". Known for their sensitivity to all but the fairest weather conditions, they now are found in profusion, adorned with their adorable little clipboards. Watch for them today on a route near you!

A tip o' the pith to Jamie Partridge for the concept!
